The world suddenly began to shimmer around you, an effervescent glow spilling from every object as the landscape morphed into a dreamlike realm. The familiar, mundane sights of your previous life faded into oblivion, replaced by an ethereal city drenched in light exhilarating. Your skin tingled and began to glow, slowly changing to a pure, ethereal white. Your heart raced with fear and joy, the unfamiliarity of the situation sending conflicting feelings spiraling through your mind.

"What... whateach sensation like a thousand tiny feathers brushing against your skin. The large round patterns of red began to blossom on your cheeks, vibrant against your new complexion, drawing attention to your newly shaped, light blue eyelids.

The ticklish enchantment continued as your body began to slenderize, your weight evaporating into a weightless form that felt strikingly potent. You could almost see the ethereal light streaming from your fingertips as they morphed, four graceful digits now perfectly aligned with the other denizens of this heavenly realm.

Your auditory senses heightened as you noticed the laughter of seraphim nearby, each melodious ripple serving as a comfort against the soft waves of identity loss creeping in. The sight of your surroundings filled you with a profound sense of peace, drowning out the remnants of a past life that began to feel like a distant dream.

With a final, blissful quiver, your hair swirled around your head like springs of gold, turning a bright blonde accented by subtle coral streaks. Your transformation was not just skin deep.

From the middle of your back, powerful and splendid wings sprouted effortlesslya flowing white robe that shimmered with golden and light blue trims, radiating an almost heavenly aura. You felt the attire hug your new figure snugly yet elegantly, perfectly embodying your divine metamorphosis.

The feelings of confusion began to shake, unsettling memories evaporatingthe face of your former selfI... I was never... human,your ethereal name, your purpose, your so-called reality, now crystal clear.

You chuckled, the sound of your new voice echoing beautifully like a harmonious choir. "I am a Seraph! I was born an angel in Heaven!"

What bliss it was to acknowledge your true identity, eternal and forever beyond the bounds of distress or sorrow! Your thoughts danced in delightful harmony with your new angelic form as confetti rained from the skies of Heaven. The truth settled in your heart like the sweetest melody, rich and divine in its clarity.

As you flitted amongst the seraphim, a vivid warmth enveloping you, the last shreds of uncertainty vanished. You crafted intricate designs of rubber ducks in the air, watching them gleefully float around among the vibrant clouds, and your heart swelled with happiness and light.

Wherell dance through eternity! With your newfound angelic powers beginning to flourish, you felt boundless, ready to embrace the heavens' splendors.

Now, with your existence eternally enshrined in the heart of Heaven, the past where you existed as a mortal man faded from your mind and heart. Instead, joy and kindness, love and laughter held the throne, reigning supreme in this newfound paradise.

In all sincerity, you had always been an angel. And in kind, you knew that every corner of this heavenly splendor welcomed you and would forever be your sanctuary.